We really must put on some weight so that we can see the winter through, when not much food is available to us.

Badgers always feed and try to get as fat as they can in the autumn, because they know that they won't find much to eat when the winter comes.

The children of the Badger Group decided that the time had come to feed the birds through the winter. They knew how important it is to help the birds when the weather is cold, and food is scarce.

While the children were setting up the bird feeders, they spilled some nuts and raisins on the grass. "Let's just leave it for other animals to find," said Tom. So they did.

The children estimated that they had spilled 300g of peanuts and 200g of raisins. How much was that altogether?

That night, they were looking out of the window, just in time to see a badger family come onto the lawn. They soon found the peanuts and raisins, and hoovered them up in no time at all!

The children had, of course, filled up the bird bath. (The birds really especially when lots of it is locked up as snow and ice.) The birdbath held 2 litres of water. The children filled it using a 200ml bottle. How many times did they have to fill the bottle? like fresh water,
